

Internal Ventilation (HVAC) Studies For Complex Architectural Geometry

THE CONCERT HALL

Geometry

Grid

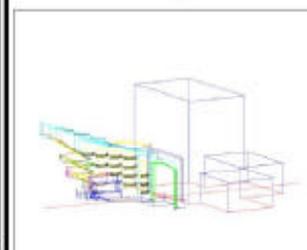

Summary

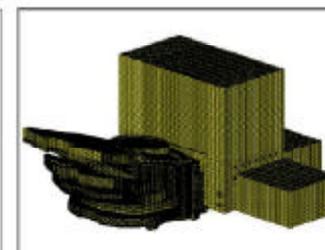

HVAC efficiency studies are carried out for geometrically complex halls (atriums). The results of the numerical simulations, in terms of temperature, velocity and air exchange fields, are used to modify the ventilation systems for the two atriums. Computational Fluid Dynamics (CFD) provides useful information to the mechanical engineers in order to assess and improve the HVAC design.

THE OPERA HOUSE

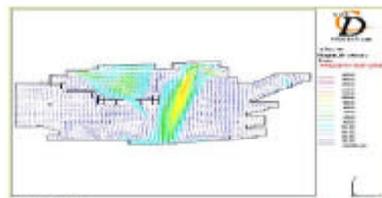

Geometry

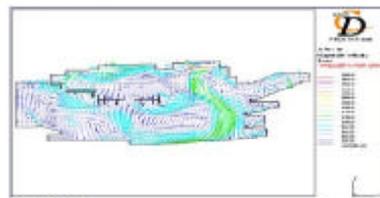

Grid

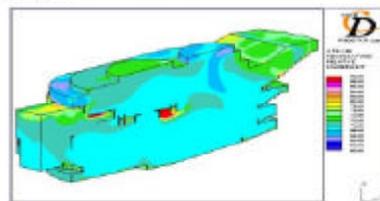

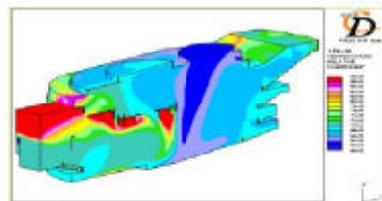

Preliminary HVAC System

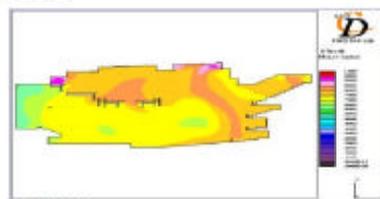

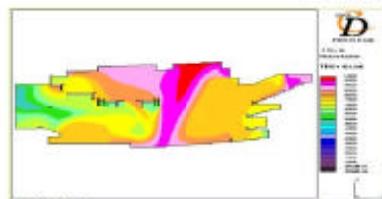

Modified HVAC System

VELOCITY FIELD

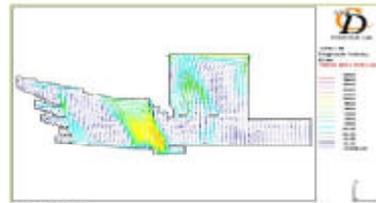

TEMPERATURE FIELD

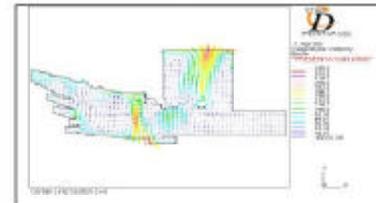

MIXTURE FRACTION FIELD

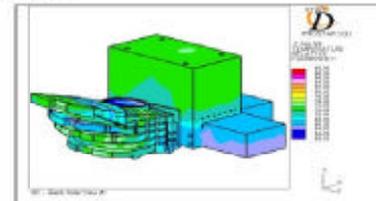

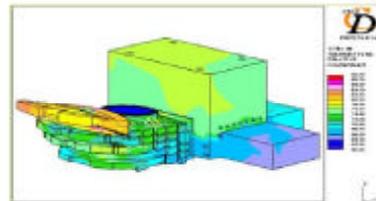

Preliminary HVAC System

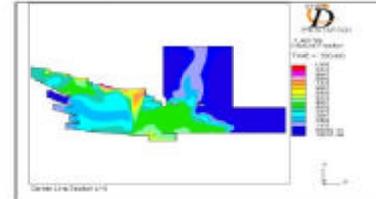

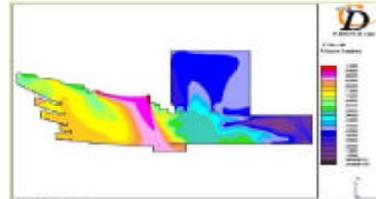

Modified HVAC System

VELOCITY FIELD

TEMPERATURE FIELD

MIXTURE FRACTION FIELD

